1. Communicative Language Teaching (CLT): Encourages real-life communication and allows students to express themselves in English.

2. Task-Based Language Teaching: Involves completing tasks that promote language use in context.

3. Differentiated Instruction: Tailors teaching methods to accommodate varying student needs and learning styles.

Assessment Techniques:

1. Formative Assessments: Regular quizzes, assignments, and classroom interactions to monitor student progress.

2. Summative Assessments: End-of-term exams and projects to evaluate overall language proficiency.

Implementation of these methodologies in the classroom has shown positive results in students' language acquisition. Observations revealed enhanced speaking, listening, reading, and writing skills through interactive activities and real-life practice. Students exhibited increased motivation and participation, translating to higher levels of engagement and better retention of language concepts.

The results conveyed that using interactive teaching methods fosters a supportive and dynamic learning environment. Engaging students through role-plays, group discussions, and multimedia resources caters to various learning preferences and makes learning English more relatable. Moreover, ongoing assessments provide teachers with valuable feedback to adjust their instructional strategies to meet students' evolving needs.

However, challenges such as diverse proficiency levels among students and limited resources may hinder the effective implementation of these methodologies. Teachers must adapt their approaches and ensure all students receive the support they need to succeed in learning English.

The effectiveness of teaching English to students greatly depends on the employed methodologies. By integrating communicative approaches, task-based activities, and ongoing assessments, educators can create an engaging and effective learning experience. Investing in training teachers to implement these strategies will ultimately enhance students' language skills and prepare them for future opportunities in a globalized world.
